Notes

- Look down to see Andy's massive footprint in the pavement. Being the size of a toy makes even a child's shoe absolutely huge!
- Look for a giant box for Tyrannosaurus Rex. There is a price tag with the numbers 11/22 and the price $19.95. This is the original release date for Toy Story.
- Don't miss a picture with the Luxo ball. The giant yellow ball has been included in every Pixar movie.

Notes

Pocket Guide to Hidden Gems in Hollywood Studios

- At Muppet Vision 3D look to the right at the box office window. There is a sign that says "Back in 5 minutes. The key is under the mat." Look under the welcome mat that is on the floor beneath the window and check for the key!
- Keep your eye on the sign for PizzeRizzo. The flashing neon spells out a hidden message.
- Don't miss meeting Sorcerer Mickey!

Commissary Lane

Animation Courtyard

- Look at the light fixtures in Star Wars Launch Bay. Some of them are made from old medical droids.
- Also keep your eyes out for roaming Storm Troopers.

Echo Lake

- Explore the Backlot Express Restaurant. Look for references to old TV shows and movies.
- Don't miss the Speeder Bike photo op outside Star Tours.

- Inside Tower of Terror queue, as you leave the lobby and enter the TV Room there is a bulletin board in a glass case. Some of the letters have fallen out; see what the letters spell out.
- When entering Rock 'n' Roller Coaster, listen at the doors to studio A and Studio B to see if you can hear a recording session going on inside.

Sunset Boulevard

Hollywood Boulevard

- In front of the Chinese Theater look for handprints of famous actors.
  - Keep your eyes open for Streetmosphere actors.
  - Take in all the details referencing old Hollywood. Architecture and billboards reference the bustling era of Tinseltown.
- Grand Avenue
- Take a glance at the sheet music in the windows. There is music from Star Wars and Indiana Jones.
